Brussels Commentary on EU Procurement Law - Michael Steinecke 2019-02-07 A transparent public procurement law in Europe plays a decisive role for the predictability and acceptance of market rules and thus for Europe as a business location. The work comments by article on the European directives and regulations of all important areas of procurement from a European point of view. The Brussels commentary thus provides argumentative security in all major procurement procedures for the interpretation of national regulatory bodies. The book is up to date and takes into account only recently adopted new guidelines.

Agreement on the European Economic Area - Finn Arnesen 2018-02-08 The provisions of the Agreement on the European Economic Area (EEA) determine the relationship between the European Union (EU) and the EFTA States. The Agreement gives EFTA States and Iceland the possibility to participate in the European Union.

Experiments in Ethics - Kees M. O'Malley 2010-03-30 In the past few decades, scientists of human nature—including experimental and cognitive psychologists, neuroscientists, evolutionary theorists, and behavioral ecologists—have explored how we arrive at moral judgments. They have debated which are the main cognitive processes involved in moral judgments, whether moral judgments are mental representations, whether moral judgments are subjective or objective, whether moral judgments are innate or learned, and whether moral judgments are influenced by culture or by biology. These are just a few of the many questions that ethical psychologists have addressed. In this book, O'Malley explores how the empirical study of moral judgments reveals the cognitive and neural mechanisms that underlie them. O'Malley argues that moral judgments are mental representations that are based on cognitive processes, such as those involved in reasoning, inference, and decision-making. O'Malley also argues that moral judgments are subjective and that they are influenced by culture and by biology. European Consumer Law (Paperback) - Norbert Reich 2016-12-01 New available in paperback! European consumer law is the core of European civil law. In recent years, it has been subject to spectacular decisions by the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU), with significant consequences for Member States' law. This thoroughly updated second edition follows and analyzes this process in such important areas as unfair commercial practices, consumer cross-border protection, and product liability. The very concept of consumer and consumer protection has been subject to intense debate. Does European law limit itself to the "informed consumer standard," or should the 'weaker' or even the "vulnerable consumer standard" be given more attention? There is legislation in the area of consumer rights in the EU. Common alternative dispute resolution schemes are still in the pipeline, e.g. mortgage credit, while other projects are subject to heated controversy, namely the proposed optional Common European Sales Law, which will affect consumer law. The new edition of the book has been updated to the very latest case law and legislation.

Theaster Gates, Sarah Lucas, David Lynch, Rivane Neuenschwander and Ai Weiwei, among many others. Instructions, essays contextualizing "Do It," documentation from the history of the exhibition and instructions by 200 artists from all over the world selected by Obrist, "Do It" exhibitions were being created all over the world by realizing the artists' instructions. With every version of the exhibition new instructions were added, so that whether a show could take "scores" or written instructions by artists as a point of departure, which could be interpreted anew each time they were enacted. To test the ideas, Obrist invited artists to send instructions, which were then translated into nine different languages and circulated internationally as a book. Within two years, "Do It!" exhibitions were being created all over the world by realizing the artists' instructions. With every version of the exhibition new instructions were added, so that today more than 300 artists have contributed to the project. Constantly evolving and morphing into different versions, it could be interpreted as the departure upon which the festival was enacted. The essays can be divided into three categories. The first addresses general questions concerning Plato’s literary style. The second concerns the relationship of his style to other genres and traditions in Ancient Greece. And the third examines Plato’s characters and his purpose in using them.

International Law under the Rome Conventions - Olaf Dessein 2017-01-26 International Law under the Rome Conventions offers a full academic examination of the conflict-of-laws questions in Law, as far as they are standardised in Europe (Rome I and for industrial actions Rome II). It also deals with the optionally (or unregularly patented) field of the law referring to the applicable employment law. This book answers detailed conflict-of-laws questions of the European Labour Law, including questions concerning the nature of the employment contract; special connecting rules for overriding mandatory provisions; creation of the contract; subject matter of the contract; termination of the contract; post-termination effects of the employment contract; and industrial action. [Subject:Labour & Discrimination Law, Contract Law, Commercial Law] the idea of communism against the backdrop of global social crises and despite negative historical experiences. From the anticipation of a communism without a state to the problem of the concept of democracy and an analysis of capitalism as a system, the two extensions are the result of our time. While explaining his political philosophy, Badiou also reflects on current socio-political developments such as the turmoil in the Middle East and the situation in China. This compelling dialogue is both a highly topical contribution to the question of how we might organize our societies differently and an accessible introduction to Badiou's philosophical thinking.

Paul's Community Formation Preaching in 1 Thessalonians

Kwok-Hyo Chan 2017-10 This book increases awareness about Paul's community formation preaching which has been widely ignored in the contemporary homiletical field where the New Testament has exerted a strong influence. By drawing on the sociological concept of symbolic boundaries, the author demonstrates that Paul in his preaching used three symbolic resources in order to create boundaries for the formation of a new Thessalonian community: the kerygmatic narrative, local narratives, and ethical norms. This interdisciplinary study suggests that contemporary preachers, who face the task of forming Christian communities in a post-Christian society, should preach shared narratives and communal norms for the creation of boundaries as Paul did.
